

Stories from the Streamside

Ranui Whanau Day

Celebrating Our Tamariki

Whanau Day is a community day, organised each year by the Ranui Action Project, to celebrate the children of Ranui.

Silver Beet for All

This year (2009) it was held on 21 March and as always, it was a fantastic celebration of local families and community.

This year, Project Twin Streams collaborated with the Ranui Community Garden and attendees were able to plant their own silver beet plant in a biodegradable pot.

To show attendees how yummy full grown silver beet is, there was also delicious silverbeet quesadillas to try. Kristen Kell, Project Twin Streams art assistant, helped children decorate recycled paper butterflies to put on their pots.

"Events like Whanau Day, are really important for the local community – it's great to see people out celebrating their children and grandchildren and learning about their environment at the same time."

- Clair Hobi
PTS Ranui-Massey Coordinator

For more information on the work of Project Twin Streams visit www.projecttwinstreams.org.nz

